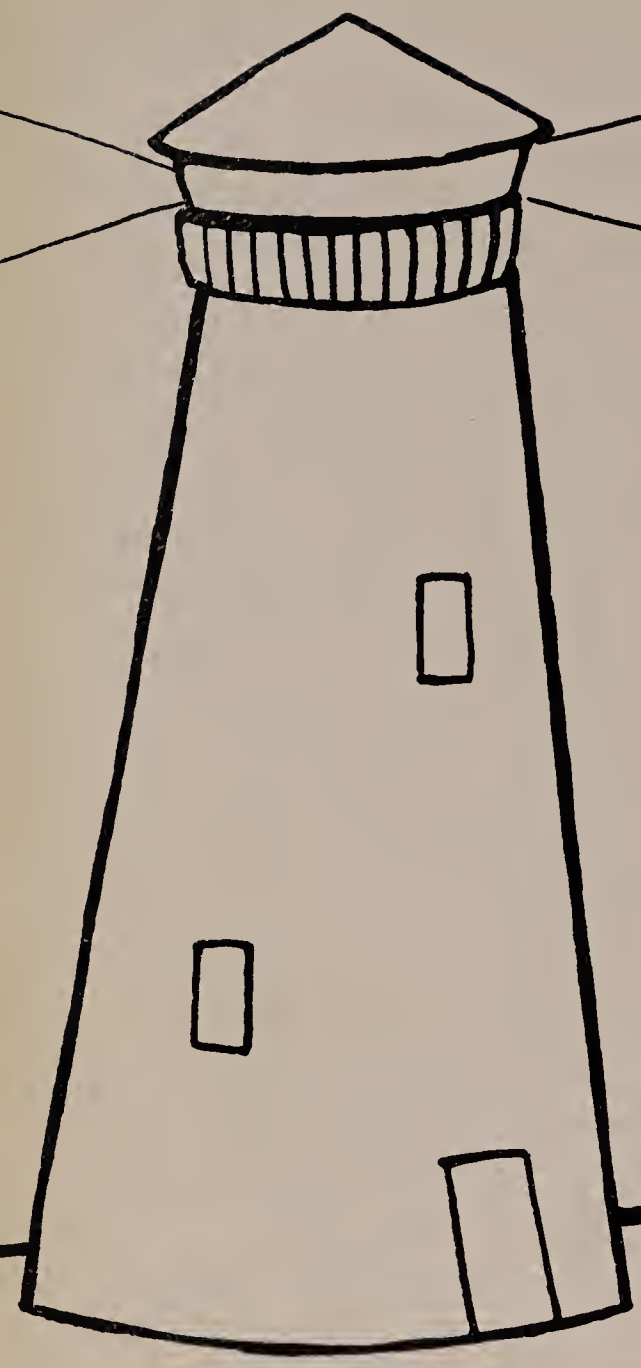
FOREWORD



"I do believe the world is swinging toward the light."

The doors through which we pass . . . the corridors . . . the friendly talks before class . . . the classrooms . . . youth coming and going; all this is recorded in the 1957 PEAK.

In years to come, the yearbook will keep alive the memories gathered during our undergraduate days.

The future years will bring new faces and changes to the school scene. But, there will be for us this record of the friends we knew, the things we did, and the memories we will always have with us.

Medfield High School means more to us as seniors than it did as freshmen, yes, more than a mere candlelight, it is a bright and ceaseless beacon with wider beams for tomorrow.

DEDICATION

For your constant source of guidance and inspiration and for your cordial hospitality
we, the Senior Class, dedicate the 1957 "PEAK" to you, Mr. and Mrs. John Harrington.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Throughout your education you have been given numerous responsibilities. These responsibilities, seemingly small, have helped to prepare you for later life. You people, in the future, will be responsible for the well being of our country. Whenever I think of our country, a quotation comes to mind.

In cooperation there is unity
In unity there is purpose
In purpose there is strength.

CLASS HISTORY

BUNNY WALDRON BERNARD BARCELLO

June, 1957, and here we are again with an around the world broadcast of the past four years at Medfield High School coming to you over the Blue and White Network from Station M.H.S. with transmitting facilities at Medfield, Mass.

In September, 1953, class election was held, and after the ballots were counted our newly elected officers were: Ted Kreger, President; David Stuart, Vice President; Joan Coombs, Secretary; and Peggy Tucker, Treasurer. At a later election, Joan Coombs and Peggy Tucker were chosen to be Freshman cheerleaders.

The following month, in October, we eagerly, but fearfully, looked forward to our Junior-Freshman Frolic, which was our official entrance into high school. After the initiation, we danced to the music of Baron Hugo.

We were sorry to see Dick O'Donnell, Ronald Shade, and Bobby Alger leave us that year, but newcomers who joined us were Anne Elworthy, Marilyn MacPhetres, and Barbara Knowles.

The rest of the year passed without incident, except for a class dance at Claire Aylward's house and a trip to Nantasket in June.

Our class officers for the Sophomore year were: Jack Alger, President; David Stuart, Vice President; Joan Coombs, Secretary; and Bernard Barcello, Treasurer. Tom Sweeney and Claire Aylward were elected as representatives to the Student Council.

Our first activities were skating at Rolland and a hayride. A few months later we held an ice-skating party at Mill Pond.

We pause for a moment for an advertisement. The day was March 2, 1954. We felt, like most sophomores, that now was the time to order class rings, so we purchased ours from the L. G. Balfour Co., and awaited their arrival in September.

Back to our news flashes once more. By this time, several of our classmates had left us, namely, Gretchen Anderson, Joyce Farrington, Charles Clifton, and Ted Kreger, but Nancy Rankin took her place in the class.

Before we knew it, June was here, and we happily put away all thoughts of school for the summer.

We came back to school in 1955 as Juniors, realizing we had a big year ahead of us. With this thought in mind, we chose the following officers: Tom Sweeney, President; Paul Seeley, Vice President; Joan Coombs, Secretary; and Bernard Barcello, Treasurer.

Nancy White left for Florida, but returned again for the Senior year. Also, David Stuart left the class, leaving it with only 22 members.

Our first big task of the Junior year was the Junior-Freshman Frolic, and to our great delight, this time we were not on the receiving end. At this very successful event, the Freshmen were given a thorough and amusing initiation, and everyone enjoyed the dance afterwards.

Flash! On April 28, the long awaited Junior Prom was held. Rewarded by our planning and decorating, we danced to the music of Pete Derba's Orchestra, along with King Neptune and his mermaids. Mr. and Mrs. Harrington were presented with a gift for their kind and generous help. This unforgettable evening was capped by a morning breakfast given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harrington, following the visit to Ten Acres.

On May 31, the Mothers' Club put on the annual Junior-Senior Banquet. A delicious chicken dinner was enjoyed by all. The seniors then read the class prophecy, history, and will. The final touch to a wonderful evening was the record hop directly after the Banquet.

Joyce Kingsbury, Peggy Tucker, Alan Evans, and Paul Seeley were given the honor of being marshals at the senior graduation.

We assembled for our final year in 1956, with Jack Gaffney as newest member of our class. For class officers for the last time, we elected Paul Seeley, President; Tom Sweeney, Vice President; Joan Coombs, Secretary; and Bernard Barcello, Treasurer.

The senior cheerleaders were Joan Coombs, Peggy Tucker, Joyce Kingsbury, and Nancy Rankin.

Our student council representatives were Peggy Tucker and David Kimpton.

We now began to concentrate on the social activities of the year. Among these events were record hops and two very successful paper drives.

Late news items. In December, the two upper classes got together and ran a Junior-Senior Christmas Dance.

In January, Tom Sweeney, Jackie Curry, Bernard Barcello, and Marilyn MacPhetres traveled to Boston to broadcast our current record poll on Bob Clayton's "Boston Ballroom" program.

Organized in the spring of 1956, the yearbook staff was then bustling with activity, under the direction of David Kimpton, Editor-in-Chief.

The annual football banquet was held on February 9. Sweaters were given to the senior cheerleaders and football players. Trophies were awarded to Alan Evans, outstanding back, and to Eric Iafolla, outstanding lineman.

With many of the years activities rushing upon us, we prepared for the minstrel show and the school play, "George Washington Slept Here." Both were held in April.

We now leave our high school days behind. Although each of us goes his own way, we will often think of one another and of our experiences at Medfield High School.

MEMORIES

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

PRISCILLA HULL DAVID KIMPTON

We the undersigned being of weak mind and frail body hereby leave our few worldly possessions to our dear friends in the following manner.

ARTICLE I: Joan Coombs leaves her title of "Rudy's Best Pal" to Harry, one time loser, Brown.

ARTICLE II: John Cebrowski leaves the haunting refrains of his melodic laugh to George Knehr.

ARTICLE III: Claire Aylward leaves her seat in the office to Margie Sargent.

ARTICLE IV: Alan Evans leaves his power-house football talents to Bruce Simpson.

ARTICLE V: Jacqueline Curry leaves her calm debating abilities to Betty Lou Brock.

ARTICLE VI: Eric Iafolla leaves his curly hair to Frannie Rossi.

ARTICLE VII: Priscilla Hull leaves her level-headed stick-to-it-iveness to her monstrous sister.

ARTICLE VIII: Paul Seeley leaves his wise cracks to none other than Gordon Lougee.

ARTICLE IX: Joyce Kingsbury leaves her flirtatious ways to Carol Keirstead.

ARTICLE X: Jack Gaffney leaves his desert boots to Bernyce Fortier.

ARTICLE XI: Anne Elworthy willingly leaves her vocabulary to that new writer, Pat Regan.

ARTICLE XII: Mathew Molloy leaves his mechanical talents to Cat Gagliani.

ARTICLE XIII: Bunny Waldron leaves her gymnastic abilities to Kenny Simpson.

ARTICLE XIV: Walter Nye willingly leaves Good Old Medfield High.

ARTICLE XV: Peggy Tucker leaves her pony tail and basketball uniform, "dirty 21," to Patti McDermott.

ARTICLE XVI: Thomas Sweeney reluctantly passes on his pioneer knowledge of the back roads to Joe Dugan.

ARTICLE XVII: Kathi McCarthy very happily leaves her fine ability for pushing cars in the early hours of the morning to Josie Bravo and Carol Tammero.

ARTICLE XVIII: Nancy White leaves her big, loud mouth to Dennis Cogavin.

ARTICLE XIX: Bernard Barcello leaves his dollar sign eyes and one box of genuine, imported pheasant eyes to Frank Travers.

ARTICLE XX: Nancy Rankin leaves her title of "Heartbreaker" and her well worn record "The Great Pretender" to Barbara Stevens.

ARTICLE XXI: Jack Alger leaves his sly method of losing Mrs. Potter's office practice answer book to Janice Hutchins, although we know she must already have some good methods of her own.

ARTICLE XXII: Barbara Knowles leaves her well used, but fully rusted cigarette lighter to Gail Brown in hopes that she will wisely use it to the fullest extent.

ARTICLE XXIII: Marilyn MacPhetres leaves her calm disposition to Fog Horn Cain.

ARTICLE XXIV: David Kimpton leaves his well used General Math book to Pat Harris.

ARTICLE XXV: To Mrs. Warburton we leave two light bulbs and one slightly used curry comb so that she may always keep her students bright-eyed and bushy tailed.

ARTICLE XXVI: To Miss Smith the history class leaves one can of silver polish so that she can always keep her Phi Beta Kappa pin bright and shiny.

ARTICLE XXVII: To Mr. Harrington we leave a printing press so that he won't always have to come to us for money.

ARTICLE XXVIII: To Coach Morris we leave a book on "How To Mistreat Recruits" and an application blank to join the Air Force.

ARTICLE XXIX: To Miss Fedor we leave a never ending supply of hot air to blow up her ever shrinking automobile tires.

ARTICLE XXX: To Mrs. Potter the Bookkeeping class regretfully leaves one small size, foolproof safe to keep her wandering answer book in.

ARTICLE XXXI: To Mr. Mains we leave a muffler for the P.A. system.

ARTICLE XXXII: To Mrs. Kerr we leave one well trained, radar controlled, carrier pigeon to deliver the morning bulletin.

ARTICLE XXXIII: To Mr. Tiffany we leave a rocking chair equipped with skis so that he can break a leg in comfort.

ARTICLE XXXIV: To Mrs. Pederzini we leave our deepest thanks for guiding us through our Senior year and one ton of paper to hang onto until our next paper drive.

ARTICLE XXXV: To Miss Ryan the girls leave one super-duper, double duty key chain so she can keep track of her shower key.

ARTICLE XXXVI: To Mrs. Cobb we leave an automatic baseball bat to help keep her Art classes in line.

ARTICLE XXXVII: To Shop Morris we leave an indestructible ride with the student drivers.

ARTICLE XXXVIII: To Mr. Dargie the Senior girls leave a matching set of hand cuffs to keep classes in their seats before the lunch bell rings. The Senior boys leave him a book of censored songs for Senior boys.

ARTICLE XXXIX: To Mrs. Richardson, we leave her alone.

ARTICLE XL: To the Junior class we leave 35 front row, center, seats in the auditorium.

ARTICLE XLI: To the Sophomore class we leave two more years to break in the teachers.

ARTICLE XLII: To the Freshman class we leave our pity because we know what you have to go through.

Given this 21st day of April in the year of our Lord, one thousand fifty-seven, at Medfield, Massachusetts.

Signed,

I. M. A. Zombie

CLASS MOTTO

"We walk by faith, not by sight"

CLASS SONG

We are leaving Medfield
On to greater things.
High school years pass quickly
Time goes by on wings.
Thoughts stray back to Medfield
Voices now we raise,
Offering thanks we sing
Parting hymns of praise.

On to future glory
With these minds you've formed
We will make you proud
As the time goes on
To our Alma Mater
We will say good-bye
We shall not forget you
Dear old Medfield High.

CLASS PROPHECY

NANCY WHITE PAUL SEELEY

It was a cold rainy day in New York when I finally decided to get away from it all. Being chief medical secretary at West Point and assistant medical secretary at Colgate University was no easy job and one gets rather tired of being around men all the time, so off I headed for the nearest travel bureau.

As I was entering the door of the Eastman Travel Agency, I collided with a tall, good looking young man, and upon a second look, I discovered that it was an old classmate of mine, Paul "Mumbles" Seeley. It seemed that Paul was taking a breather from radio announcing on WOOPS and had come to the travel bureau for some suggestions. Since we were both undecided, we were referred to their public relations man. Much to our surprise it turned out to be Tom Sweeney, who had become quite successful and was now waiting for a top drawer job in Washington. He suggested that we take a general tour of the country together and so we boarded a jet plane at La Guardia airport and after a smooth start we headed for Chicago. During the flight the chief pilot came out of the cabin for a cup of coffee, and were we surprised to find out that it was none other than Joan Coombs. We had a friendly chat with her and found out that she had been flying jets for several years and had become Eastern Airlines top pilot. She flys only special cargo like Elvis Presley, J. Fred Muggs and Sailors.

When we arrived in Chicago the city was in a turmoil, for it seemed that they were holding Senate sub-committee hearings here, exploring the racketeers in the city and certain income tax evaders. We noticed that there seemed to be a heavy police guard around one certain man, and upon further investigation found that it was the star witness, John Cebrowski. Although we did not get a chance to talk with John, it seemed as though he would be able to handle the situation at hand for he was trying to bribe the officers with some green currency.

We decided to travel the rest of the way by car, so we started to look for a good used car lot. We found one called "Matt's A-1 Used Fords," and we went in. The distinguished looking salesman that came out to help us turned out to be Matt Malloy. It seemed that this business was just a side line for Matt, for he also owns and operates a chain of Star Market Stores throughout the country, the biggest one being in Wellesley. It was near lunch time so we stopped off at a quiet little restaurant before resuming our journey. We noticed something very familiar about the young ladies working there, for they all had long, brown pony tails and freckles galore. We asked to speak to the owner, and sure enough it was Kathi McCarthy. Kathi had opened this little restaurant soon after her marriage, and with business being so good, she had her children helping her. The rest of the children were attending Northeastern University with their father. We bid Kathi goodby and resumed our journey.

We had very good weather for our trip, and Paul decided that we should take advantage of this weather and go on a picnic at Yellowstone National Park, since by this time we were quite close to it. But who should we find there, but Bernard Barcello. Bernie had become chief forester there and was dearly loved by all, especially by the little weasels. Further on down the road we ran into two hitch hikers, but only one seemed to be thumbing. They turned out to be Alan Evans and that jolly Irishman, Eric Iafolla. It seemed that Alan was on his way to New York to participate in the marble championship, and Eric was going along to see that everything went along all right. Eric had become Al's manager more or less (mostly less), and that was why he was doing all the thumbing when we picked them up—he did not want Al to hurt his fingers.

Although New York was rather out of the way, we dropped them off, and while we were there we dropped into the City Art Gallery where an exhibit was being held of Miss Jackie Curry's paintings. Jackie was on a brief visit to the U. S. for she was in demand all over Europe, especially in Millistrano, Italy.

Since it was Sunday, we decided to attend church and started to park the car in front of Saint Patrick's, when a blue Chevrolet came zooming up the street, through a red light, and parked directly over a crosswalk. Upon closer observation we discovered that it was Anne Elworthy who was, as usual, in a rush. We learned that she was teaching English at Regis College, and had become quite well known in the South for her debates on atheism.

Out on the open road again, we spied an Indian reservation and stopped a few minutes to look around. We spied a young Marine trying to cheat a poor old Indian out of his eye teeth, it turned out to be Jack Alger. Jack had joined the service soon after graduation and was doing very well at Fort Apache. He planned to come back to Medfield High School and teach science and math when his ten year hitch was up in a few weeks.

We came upon an old squaw while walking around who was sitting out in the sun weaving a beautiful rug. It happened to be our old classmate Claire Aylward, who undecided as to what to do with herself, had joined the Indians to live a life of ease. Just before arriving in Hollywood, we passed a movie on location and stopped to see if we knew any of the movie stars there. As luck would have it, Nancy Rankin was starring in the picture, "Too Many Husbands," and we spent a pleasant few minutes talking to her. She had gradually replaced Jayne Mansfield, and Greta Garbo, and was now working for her fourth Oscar.

When we entered Boston, near our journeys end, we decided to tour one of the bigger hospitals there. When we entered the main door of the hospital we were greeted by Marilyn MacPhetres who was there on relief work. She ordinarily worked for Doctor

Paul Dudley White, but he was away in Europe at the time. Marilyn offered to show us around, and after a little bit of persuasion, let us view an operation.

As we gazed down at the table, the nurse assisting at the operation looked familiar, and sure enough it was Barbara Knowles busily removing a floating rib. We wished that we had the chance to talk with Barb, but we really had to be on our way.

We crossed over quite a few new bridges on our way out from Boston, and so we stopped to inquire about them. Fortunately the civil engineer for the job happened to be lunching at the time with a friend, but stopped to talk with us. It turned out to be Peggy Tucker. She had drawn up plans for many bridges in the area and also throughout Texas. Peggy is still working on a bridge from here to kingdom come, but there are still a few flaws to be worked out. Peg introduced us to her friend, Jack Gaffney, a successful young business tycoon in the shoe lace industry.

Our journey would not be complete without a trip to the old home town and to the school that we all loved so well. We stopped off at the school first and were met at the door by Walter Nye who was now principal and who had done wonders for the school. He had raised the teachers' salaries to twenty dollars a week and the school actually had heating systems that worked.

We couldn't get over how spotless the school was, so we inquired and found out that this was due to the sole efforts of one Joyce Kingsbury. Joyce had forsaken her Masters Degree in Social Work from Mass. State just to come back and keep old Medfield High clean and bright.

We also wanted to see a class in action and chose the gym class. Much to our surprise we found Bunny Waldron teaching the senior boys how to play cricket. Bunny really enjoyed being a Phys. Ed. teacher, and also told us in strict confidence, that she was coaching the Harvard football team on the side and that they were shaping up rather well this year. We bid farewell to old M.H.S. and headed back for New York.

Before we got very far, Paul decided that a soda would just hit the spot, so we stopped into the Clement Drug Store where we found David Kimpton busy at work. It had taken quite a while, but Dave had finally reached the top and was now head clerk at the soda fountain. We offered our congratulations, and before leaving, Dave gave us each a box of pansies right from his own garden. He hopes to have a prize crop this year for the fair.

While driving back to New York, we read in the paper that a famous UNIVAC operator had come up with a solution to Einstein's theory of relativity, and lo and behold if it wasn't our own Priscilla Hull. The paper said that she was due in New York in several days to receive the Nobel Prize and we looked forward to seeing her after so many years.

Thus is written the prophecy of the class of 1957. Written in peace, may it be accepted in peace.

CANDIDS

Feeling high, Paul?

Good luck in Washington.

Busy little beavers.

Memories are made of this.

Busy fingers!

"How does that grab you?"

Oh, it's not that bad!

You will wear a necktie!

Too young to tango.

Working hard, boys?

Who works on Sunday? We do!

Full house!

LUNCH CANDIDS

Chaarrge!!!

Looks like stew today!!

Sheik of the lunchline.

Soup sloupers from way back.

Good meal, huh???

What's this jazz called???

IN APPRECIATION

We would like to thank everyone for helping us to produce the 1957 "PEAK."

Special thanks go out to our principal, teachers, fellow students, and townspeople.
